Two of the seminary's new trustees (Ed Sellers, NC and Ollie Key, GA) were present, along with Chairman, Lee Beaver, for the orientation program on campus, September 3-5. President Lolley visited with the other new trustee (Tom Metts) at his new location in Washington DC, September 29. His move prevented his attendance at the trustee orientation.

Five Southeastern Seminary professors have concluded a special weekly chapel series. Their messages were personal testimonies on "What Jesus Christ Means to Me."

One hundred forty Southeasterners, along with the president of the Student Council, the seminary president, and two teachers went to the area around Wilmington, NC stricken by hurricane Diana during the week of September 10. These volunteers became the damage assessment team trained and supervised by the American Red Cross.

Discussions are underway to establish a ready-response team from the seminary to assist the Red Cross in future natural disasters.

Dr. Fred Sandusky has established the fall semester enrollment at 1246. This compares to 1208 last fall - a 3.15% increase.

Adams Hall will be dedicated during the meeting of the trustees, October 16. This beautiful, serviceable facility will greatly enhance the teaching/learning process at Southeastern. It contains eight classrooms, four seminar rooms, and a new photo lab. In addition, the re-cycled facility meets all safety, energy, and handicapped codes.

The SBC Executive Committee and Inter-Seminary Conference met in Nashville, Tennessee September 17-19. Reports from all the agencies revealed that in spite of the current year Cooperative Program short-fall, all the programs are in place and the agencies will finish the year in the black. Next year will be a crucial budgeting year.

At Southeastern Seminary, the 1983-84 audit has been completed and the seminary completed the year ending July 31, 1984 in the black. The administrative officers are to be commended on their careful cost cutting and budget control measures.
