Vol. V. No. 28

TO THE ENTIRE SEMINARY FAMILY:

I would like to take this opportunity to express to each of you my personal gratitude for your help. To this year's S.C.C. may I say a very special "thank you" for the time, energy, and hard work which you have contributed to your jobs. Even more important has been your spirit of openness and cooperation. You shall always have my respect for the work you have done and for the progress which you have made.

My gratitude goes also to the entire student body for your interest, cooperation, and enthusiasm in the work of your S.C.C. I appreciate your willingness to work through the S.C.C. to help improve relations. We have tried to be open to suggestions and remarks from any student. This complete freedom of speech has been very beneficial and it is my hope that it shall continue in years to come.

It is my desire also to express sincere gratitude to our faculty and administration. You have been open to hear our many questions, suggestions, and even complaints and have often given much needed advice. This interest in student affairs and attitude of fellowship has done much to improve community relations in our school.

As we have now reached the time for the election of new S.C.C. officers, may I urge you to vote for the candidates of your choice and then, finally, to support whomever is elected as your representative. To the newly elected S.C.C. I say, may God bless you as you attempt to work as representatives of the entire student body and of Southeastern.

Most gratefully,

Engrum Johnson Comman C

S. C. C. GENERAL ELECTIONS -----TUESDAY, MAY 6th.

Today, (May 6, 1969), is election day. As you already know the voting will take place outside the main entrance to Mackie Hall. Members of the nominating committee will serve as attendants at the poll.

I am pleased to announce that the poll will be open an additional hour, from the previous schedule, 9:00 to 10:00 a.m. The poll will be closed from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. Ten to eleven is of course chapel period and all visitors are invited to attend the services. With this additional hour you may vote during the following time:

# 8:00 -- 10:00 a.m.  MANUALITATION

# 11:00 a.m. -- 1 2:00 p.m.  1 2:00 p.m. ***

2:30 -- 4:00 p.m. ***

After you have marked your ballot please do not fold it, merely drop it in the ballot box. By not folding the ballot will result in a lot of time saved by the counters.

Your cooperation in this request will be rreatly appreciated.

S.C.C. and non S.C.C. members of the student body will begin counting the ballots after the poll closes at 4:00 p.m. in room 108 Appleby. Any interested person is cordially invited to watch the results being counted. After all ballots are counted the results will be posted.

If a run-off becomes necessary (see Article II "Election of Officers" of the Bylaws) that run-off will be held the next day, Wednesday, May 7, 1969.

Vice-Chairman, S.C.C.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES OF S.C.C. CANDIDATES:

In order to have an ideal S.C.C. election, each voter should be able to talk with each candidate and to get to know him or her as an individual. We realize that this is impossible, so we are providing the following information about the candidates for students who do not like to vote for people about whom they know nothing. Basic information was obtained from the Field Work Office. Each candidate was given an opportunity to decide whether he wanted any or all of the information printed and was asked to indicate which S.C.C. offices he had previously held. Since there is such a large number of candidates, it has been necessary to limit the space donated to each candidate; "experience" has been limited to church related work. While we acknowledge the limitations of this method of "getting acquainted" with the candidates, we feel that some information is better than none.

One spring day young Pavid, a woolwatcher, was busy in the countryside of Wake Forestine when the King of the Court called David to the place of the Green Court. When Pavid arrived at the Court he was outfitted with the most powerful of metal Weapons but young David put them aside and picked up his old familiar wood framed string and set out on the task ordered by the King--to defeat Goliath the giant leader of the Tennistings.

Verse 2

When Pavid reached the battlecourt he selected three round projectiles, the smoothest ones he could find. Moments later he faced the awesome giant Goliath, face to face. Only a tattered net separated the two warriors. Sillouted against the rolling hills Goliath towered above the brave little woolwatcher. David hummed courageously the tune "Onward Christian Soldiers" starring the big Goliath in the kneecap. Each of the contestants realized the necessity for victory. Verse 3

Goliath roared at his little adversary in a thunderous voice, "Your serve". So David said confidently, "OK big boy if thats the way you want it." He settled on his feet drew his string tossed the projectile in the air ana let it fly with tremendous force. The Giant fell, his head severed (racket head). The boy had Won. Of all fitten Ofto mori letter from Philip Parker in the april 29 issue of the Enquiry has motivated much concern for the well-peing of Southeastern. The following letters represent a varity of opinions on "what's wrong" and "what's right" with Southeastern. We regret that Phil's letter was not received in time to allow dialogue over a number of weeks and possibly group discussions.

May 3, 1969

Dear Phil: wowoll owd onT -140800

Thank you for sharing your concern for "creating meaning education" at Southeastern and for the contricutions which you yourself have made coward that end.

There are some things in your recent letter to the Editor of the inquiry (Vol. V, No. 27. April 29, 1969. 5.2) which trouble me. As you made your letter public, may I reply publically through the same campus publication.

Even good scholars are glad when not. Let me also note that the trad 'school is out" and many of our fellows tion among Southern Baptist seminave been in school a long time. Surely naries is to take all who are qualigraduation should be a time of rejoicing, fiel and not just a top few for whom for even theological students did not requirements may be different. Our some to stay.

Southern Baptist seminaries are so

You were kind to note the heavy ourden of financing an education. Surely the necessity of providing for one's family and even one's self takes nuch time and energy which could be spent profitably in study and fellowship. Our fellow Baptists share in a wonderful way by providing funds so that the seminary does not have to charge juition. (This amounts to every stulent- regardless of denominational affliation - receiving a scholarship at our six Southern Baptist seminaries.) Through the years friends and alumni of the school have contributed funds from which grants and loans can be made to students in cases of emergencies. It is our sincere desire that no one at Southeastern will suffer for the lack of "basic needs." If you know of such a one, please contact Dr. Moore, Mr. Todd or me.

Your comment about some lectures "lack fire and conviction" reminds me of some experiences I have had. Some of the "popular" professors I have long out-grown, and some whom I had juged "dull" are still ahead of me. Here at Wake Forest College, my first impressions of Dr. W.R. Cullom were not favorable and I almost missed him entirely. Yet he was and remains to me one of God's great servants and William Manson of Edinburg teachers. did not set the world on fire by his styleof presentation, but careful attention to this fine New Testament scholar was richly rewarding. Professors are like other men; each has his own way. So you fellows preach differently, and even the best of your sermons might be juged " a deadening drone" by some in your audience

(Lk. 6:31.)

Of raising the number of hours for graduation in the Master of Divinity program, let me note that this was anticipated in changing from a bachelor's degree to a master's and that this increase makes possible the reading courses for those in the honor program and gives an increased choice of electives to those who are not. Let me also note that the tradi tion among Southern Baptist semifiel and not just a top few for whom requirements may be different. Southern Baptist seminaries are so inter-related that it would be most difficult for one school to cut much below what the other seminaries require. Surely this new hour standar is an effort to increase the quality of education: it is the challenge of the student to make it so.

As to your fourth point, you must be aware of the changes that ar taking place on this campus. At its last meeting the faculty voted for student representation on most of th faculty committees. It is hoped that this will strengthen the seminary in every way. This is only one evidence of an ppenedness here to new ways. (You might be interested that a sister seminary made "news" last month by turning chapel services over to students for a week.)

Your statement about the Southe Baptist Convention's refusing "to li in the 'New Time' of this age" is unfair in light of the Statement of Crisis, the vigorous leadership of (Letters, cont.) the Home Mission Board and other changes this way, they night be more willing that are evident and others that are in to act. the making. Througgh its 2,000 alumni Southeastern Seminary is making significant contributions in nearly every aspect of our denominational witness. This influence is no accident.

Your suggestion of an open discussion is good. Let's now offer some creative new ideas of how we can improve dude to those individuals who have our life here at the seminary so that we contributed to the beauty of our camall may fulfill the opportunities before is in serving both God and man.

> Sincerely, James H. Blackmore

EDUCATION AT SOUTHEASTERN: ttendance, Evaluation, and Student Response

his has invited all to speak their linds in reaction to his article in the Enquiry and I would like to say "AMEN!" to all Phil has written, and to add.a

'ew thoughts of my own.

- 1. I, along with many other people to not feel that a required attendance policy (i.e. no more than one-fourth of the classes can be missed) helps the education process. An unlimited cut policy forces the professor to make his classas a learning experience, for if ttendance is low, he is forced to make is class, through his lectures, such that students cannot afford to cut it. Possibly then, as Phil says, some of the the stereo cabinet and other furnishscholarship can reach the lecture room! furthermore, whether a student can learn advance of any visit by State Secre-the material on his own or not, should 'taries, Editors, and Trustees; promp be his business. Why should the pro-'essors play policemen and make sure students are there? If a student is not quickly responding to faulty heatresponsible enough to go to class when necessary, then let him fail because he cannot do the work, not because he over- tude of other fast, diffecient, and out.
- 2. A program shereby a student valuates, in writing, each of his courses would be beneficial. These could then be reviewed by the professor, is well as possibly by some committee, and the courses could then be improved ipon each year.

3. Students speak your minds. The dministration needs to hear these obser IN THE NEXT AND FINAL ISSUE, WHICH ations and suggestions from more than ust a couple of students. If they knew hat more than a couple of people felt

Sandy Phelps

Where have all the flowers gone?... choked by weeds everyone. When will we ever learn, When will we ever ... learn?

With all due respect and gratipus in terms of endowment of funds, or of plants and flowers, their selfless efforts are obviously wasted.

Case#1- The two flower beds at the north side of the Women's Dorm should be leased each spring to our military for jungle warfare exercises

Case#2- The tulip bed near the stone arch was a riot of color in it. first season last year, but this spring the blood-red of the early blooming tulips was absorbed in the green rank of weeds which continue to dilute the colorful show of the later blooming flowers.

Who is responsible? Surely not Buildings and Grounds, for they are vitally concerned with the wellbeing of the campus: Providing continuous heat and hot water service; replacing burned-out bulbs in and around our "Student Center" ; removing large, dead(ly) limbs; promptlu and effeciently clearing snow and ice from our walks and steps; uncrating ings for the Commons Room well in taries, Editors, and Trustees; promply building suggestion boxes for the SCC and painting parking signs, ing and cooling units, doors, and elevators; and performing a nulticourteous services.

Where has our campus gone?... gone to rack and ruin thanks to every one. When will we ever learn, when will we ever learn?
