A special class for pastors and others who will be teaching I Corinthians in the churches during the Spring was held on campus November 4. Dr. Richard Spencer, Professor of New Testament, taught the almost 100 persons who attended. The sessions were jointly sponsored by the seminary and the N.C. Baptist State Convention.

JANUARY BIBLE STUDY

A banquet honoring all Southeastern Seminary employees was held in the Cafeteria November 10. There were 160 persons present including Southeastern personnel and their spouses. In the future all employees will be given special recognition following each five years of service to the school.

EMPLOYEE RECOGNITION BANQUET

During November all chapters of Southeastern alumni met in conjunction with their respective state conventions. Representatives from the campus attended most of the alumni meetings. Excellent reports have been filed from the meetings.

STATE CONVENTIONS

The trustees are presently being polled by mail ballot to determine whether the Johnson Classroom Building (Adams Hall) project can be undertaken now. If their vote is affirmative, this project will begin immediately with the renovation to be completed by the fall semester 1984.

ADAMS HALL

The annual dinner with the Duke Divinity School Faculty was held in the seminary cafeteria November 22. Following an excellent meal the Faculty Club hosted the visitors for a paper and discussion in the Great Room of Broyhill Hall.

DUKE FACULTY DINNER

The largest mid-term graduation in Southeastern's history will be held December 17 in Binkley Chapel. Over 100 students plan to graduate.
