

Comments and reflections regarding the "first-ever" Seminary Retreat continue to be shared around campus. A list of 50 observations have been gleaned from the reports of the groups to the plenary session of retreat participants. This list is being distributed to all who attended the retreat. It becomes an agenda of consequence for planning and discussion as the "search for koinonia" becomes more and more a priority among Southeasterners.

One of the priority matters for the Administrative Council agenda during the past month has been a response to Dr. Porter Routh's letter asking us to list Southeastern's "crises in finance" which should be addressed in any plans by the SBC Executive Committee to endorse a national campaign for endowment and capital funds for all six SBC seminaries. This matter comes to us during the initial stages of our long-range planning process and thus our data and projections will not be as thorough or as well-informed as could be in another eighteen months. However, a response has been shaped and is in Dr. Routh's hands.

October and November mark the time each year for an array of Association and State Convention meetings. Seminary personnel are "on the move" trying to visit as many of these as possible. Representatives from Southeastern will be present at a dozen state conventions and at all meetings of Southeastern Alumni chapters this fall.

October 28 marked the first evening seminary worship experience of the fall semester. The Seminary Choir provided music. Several persons assisted in leading worship. President Lolley preached the sermon. The goal in these is to provide opportunity for students, faculty, seminary personnel, and their families, to join townspeople in the context of worship for the inspiration of the entire community.
