SEMINARY LIBRARY

The seminary Executive Council held a two-day workshop January 6-8. Objectives for the current year were reviewed and evaluated. Consensus was reached regarding the consultant's report on Support Services. The revised job classification and pay plan will be recommended to the Trustees in March.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL WORKSHOP

Classes began January 15. Enrollment shows a strong increase over last spring semester. New student orientation was well attended by entering students. Dr. John Eddins delivered the address at Convocation, January 15.

SPRING
CONVOCATION

The General Contractor is practically finished constructing the 100 student townhouses. The last ones have been accepted by the seminary. Some site work must be completed as soon as weather permits. The seminary hosted a "pig pickin'" for all workers on the project, January 18. Trustee chairman, E. T. Vinson attended and thanked the general contractor as well as sub-contractors for their efforts in making the project a reality.

APARTMENT PROJECT

The access street (McDowell Road) is not completed. It is to be provided by the Town of Wake Forest. Construction is scheduled just as soon as weather permits in the spring.

President Lolley presented the 1980-81 budget requests for Southeastern Seminary to the Program and Finance Committee of the SBC Executive Committee in Nashville, January 24. Final decisions regarding allocations are scheduled during the February meeting of the SBC Executive Committee.

PROGRAM BUDGET REQUESTS

The Lai family of 12 persons are scheduled to arrive in Wake Forest, February 7. The committee responsible for the refugee family are working furiously to complete preparations. The family will occupy a seminary owned house.

REFUGEE FAMILY

The Judge hearing the EEOC vs. Southwestern Seminary Case has rendered a decision favoring the seminary. This has been a class action suit on behalf of the six SBC seminaries from jurisdiction of EEOC to require numerous complex employee reports to be filed annually. The government has not yet served notice whether the decision will be appealed.

The Southeastern Seminary Conference on Biblical Authority was held on campus, January 29-30. Dr. Herschel Hobbs, Dr. Don Cook, and President W. Randall Lolley were principal speakers. The Conference included dialogue among faculty, visitors, and program participants as well as four sessions in Binkley Chapel. Many who registered attended classes while they were on campus. The mood throughout was positive.
