

Carver-Barnes Lectures
Dr. Leon McBeth, professor of church history at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, delivered the Carver-Barnes lectures in Binkley Chapel, November 2-3. His theme was "The Dangers of Extremism."

Small Church Conference
The Home Mission Board joined with Southeastern Seminary to sponsor a conference on campus November 2-4. The focus was on the small (mostly rural) church, its particular perils and possibilities.

State Alumni Meetings
All ten chapters of Southeastern state alumni associations met during November. Campus representatives attended with word from Wake Forest. Attendance and enthusiasm ran high as the school continues to measure its effectiveness by means of these flesh and blood evidences of the quality of the endeavor.

Raleigh Civic Symphony
The Raleigh Civic Symphony played a stimulating concert in Binkley Chapel, November 15. The program was well received as another step in providing cultural events for the communities of Northern Wake County.

Cellar Theater
Southeastern students and staff provided a three-night performance of Mark Twain's "Diary of Adam and Eve" at the Cellar Theater on campus, November 18-20.

Duke Dinner
The Southeastern Seminary Faculty Club were guests of the faculty of Duke Divinity School on the Duke University campus, November 23. Following dinner, Dr. Charles Boddie, Visiting Professor of Black Studies, spoke to the group.

Presidents Workshop
The six presidents of Southern Baptist seminaries held their annual workshop, November 29-December 3. A massive agenda (over 40 items) which has been accumulating all year was handled. Particular attention was given to recent efforts to perfect a delivery system through SEED for jointly sponsored seminary work off-campus.

Holidays
Classes for the fall term end December 8. Exams will conclude December 16. Graduation exercises are December 18. Christmas holidays for all seminary personnel are December 20-24.
